The remainder pages are what has been penciled in by some one on the original funeral notices. W/ is the actual funeral notice who the person would be listed with. If you were going to check or find the proof you would have to look up the funeral notice W/ is listed with. The writing all looks about alike and is hard to read.

EXAMPLE: To find Charlie Alexander you would look up Sarah Taylor and on her Funeral notice you would find what is written about Charlie Alexander.

HAWES,	Edgar	27

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for transparency and accountability, particularly in the context of public administration and financial management.

2. The second part of the document outlines the various methods and tools used to collect, store, and analyze data. It highlights the need for robust systems that can handle large volumes of information while ensuring data integrity and security. The text also mentions the importance of regular audits and reviews to verify the accuracy of the records.

3. The third part of the document focuses on the role of technology in modern record-keeping. It discusses how digital solutions, such as cloud storage and data management software, have revolutionized the way organizations handle their records. It also touches upon the challenges associated with digital data, such as data migration and long-term preservation.

4. The fourth part of the document addresses the legal and regulatory requirements that govern record-keeping. It notes that different jurisdictions have specific rules regarding the retention periods, access, and disposal of records. Organizations must ensure they are fully compliant with these regulations to avoid legal consequences.

5. The fifth part of the document discusses the importance of training and education for staff involved in record-keeping. It stresses that employees must be well-versed in the latest practices and technologies to ensure the quality and reliability of the records. Regular training sessions and workshops are recommended to keep the staff updated.

6. The sixth part of the document concludes by summarizing the key points and reiterating the overall importance of effective record-keeping. It states that a well-maintained record system is not just a administrative necessity but a strategic asset that can provide valuable insights and support decision-making.
